

Feline After-Surgery Care Instructions

PLEASE READ BEFORE YOU PICK UP YOUR PET.

It is important to understand your best friend has undergone advanced surgery involving general anesthesia. They will not be entirely 'normal' until morning. Here are guidelines to help them through their recovery:

- 1) When you first arrive home, find a quiet, confined space your cat cannot escape. This is their home for the night. Ideas are the laundry room, extra bedroom or bathroom. They may be disorientated and frightened tonight.
- 2) Offer them a small amount of food and normal amount of water. Some kitties may not be interested and that is normal. Do not force them to cuddle or eat. They will need some time to recover.
- 3) If your friend is not eating, drinking and fairly alert by morning, this is abnormal. We strive to provide the best care at the lowest cost, but we are unable to provide emergency care. Please call Operation S.O.S. or the Emergency facilities listed below.
- 4) Redness, swelling, and licking at the surgical site is abnormal as is rare. Check the incision daily to monitor. The local emergency clinic or Operation S.O.S. can efficiently and affordably assist you.
- 5) Just because your kitty appears normal, do not encourage play. We are cat-lovers and understand keeping a good kitty down is difficult. As the surgical incision heals over the next 10 days, simply do not encourage play.
- 6) Your pet has been given an injectable pain control medication called Meloxicam. This is similar to aspirin and lasts 24 hours. DO NOT give any human over-the-counter medications! Contact Operation S.O.S. if you believe your pet is painful.
- 7) A Microchip, the size of a grain of rice, has been inserted just under the skin between the shoulder blades. Be sure to keep your personal information current with PetLink.
